

A detailed topographic map of a coastal region. The map features contour lines indicating elevation, with a prominent green-shaded area in the center-left. This green area includes several dark green, irregular shapes that likely represent forested or protected land. To the right of the green area, the terrain slopes down towards a body of water, indicated by lighter blue and cyan colors. A river or stream flows from the green area towards the water. The map is bordered by a white area on the left and top, and a pinkish area on the right. A north arrow is located in the bottom right corner.

